Getting Social: Stand for Lands Photo Petition

Your representatives need to hear from YOU and social media is one way to get their attention. Here are the steps to do that:

1. On this sign, fill in one concise reason that gets to the heart of why you care about protecting public lands and monuments.
2. Have someone take a photo of you holding this sign.
3. If you don't know who your representatives are, go to whoismyrepresentative.com
4. Tweet this photo at your representatives. You can search for your rep's Twitter handle using the search function on the mobile app. Most representatives' official accounts will have the verified blue check mark next to their name.
5. You can also post your photo on your Facebook page and "tag" your representative. To do that, use the @ symbol and start typing their name [example: @ted cruz]. You'll see a selection of people with that name. Choose your rep from the list. Then tag the Center for Biological Diversity.

Here is sample text for your Tweets and Facebook posts:

I Stand for Public Lands. Will you too, @[Insert Rep]? #standforlands @CenterforBioDiv

Don't be afraid to personalize your tweet. Tell them why public lands are important to you.
