Yes, we received the following from Bowers Group Asia (BGA – which appears to be operating in some consulting capacity to ADM, whom we met with last week). The attached e-mail contains a rough translation of the embedded letter (which is in Thai) from the Thai Chamber of Commerce to the Thai Prime Minister PLUS some more intel on the issue, per the questions that were raised during our meeting with ADM last week (which also included BGA, NAEGA, and USGC).

On the letter, it appears the Thai Chamber of Commerce supports the domestic ban but wants the Thai government to continue to use Codex MRLs for imports. There are no indications that Thai Chamber of Commerce has requested a delay in the ban, but I will double check.

Lisa
